Powerful Testimony
IN FAVOR OF
Brown's Sarsaparilla.
From Well-Known People Who Have Used It.

Rev. T. Gerrish, the well known author of the "Blue and Gray," "Reminiscences of the War," etc. In the family of Mr. Gerrish was one who had canker in the stomach. He was advised to and did try Brown's Sarsaparilla. All traces of the disease has disappeared and Mr. Gerrish has freely given us a testimonial. Coming from such a source, any one afflicted with humor, should be convinced that Brown's Sarsaparilla will cure all forms of Blood Disease.

A. J. Farmer of Garland had Phthisic so bad that he did not care for his large farm during 188[illegible]. He was so bad that often times his friends thought he would strangle. He's been cured by Brown's Sarsaparilla.

Hon. H. B. Thomas, County Treasurer for County of Penobscot, had a serious case of Liver trouble, Constipation, etc. One bottle of Brown's Sarsaparilla regulated the system and he now enjoys perfect health.

STATEMENT.
Mrs. Alonzo Wilbur, of St. Albans, [illegible] If the "Hartland News" [illegible] Brown's Sarsaparilla was advertised. At her request her husband bought one bottle for her as she had been sick with Kidney Disease, with intense pain in the back. At times could not stand, and would have a feeling like approaching death come over her. She used the bottle, and is so far recovered as to be able to do all the household duties, and on July 15th rode two miles. She says no one can say too much in favor of Brown's Sarsaparilla, and she considers it superior to any of the many remedies for those troubles which a large portion of our Females are afflicted with.

If you have Kidney Disease, Liver Complaint, Pain across the Back, Indigestion or Dyspepsia, accompanied by Constipation, you can be cured by the use of Brown's Sarsaparilla. We warrant this, and any druggist who sells it to you will refund money if it does not do all claimed.

How to Hang a Hammock.

Rightly placed and hung, a hammock affords the very luxury of repose, and our people have done well to borrow it from their southern neighbors, whose climate and temperament are so conducive to the cultivation of a "genius for repose." But rightly hung does not mean suspended in a cramped position with both ends equally elevated. This is the way to put up a swing but not a hammock, unless it be intended simply to sit in. For reclining purposes, the head should be higher than the feet. A good rule is to fasten the head of the hammock six feet three inches from the ground or floor, and the lower end three feet three inches. The distance between the two should be eighteen or twenty feet, though fifteen feet will answer. The longer rope should be at the bottom end, as this makes swinging much easier and more agreeable.

For outdoor use, when two trees are not available, the hook for the head may be fastened upon the tree or the rope tied to it, and a post set in the ground at the required distance for the lower end. In this manner shade can be secured, though the lounger be the possessor of but a single tree. The fastenings and the rope should be strong and secure beyond peradventure, and if the hammock is to be used by young children, it should be hung very near to the ground, that the inevitable tumbles and spilling may be as harmless as possible. The closely woven hammocks are the best, as they do not wear out so quickly.

For an enjoyable and healthful siesta or for summer reading and day-dreaming this "couch in the air" is preferable to all others. For the purpose of flirtation or courtship—if the latter old fashioned word be applicable to the modern fashion of wooing—we have not observed that any hints are necessary. The hammock lends itself to the graces and natural wiles of women, and adapts itself to a young man's fancies with a facility that suggests its origin in the land of [illegible] and Love. Its [illegible] ends [illegible], but it is nevertheless essentially a thing of beauty and of luxury.

Lieutenant Greely

CHARACTERISTICS OF THE ARCTIC HERO—A MAN OF METHOD AND DETERMINATION.

"Civilization has done much for man, but it is not now a question of physical endurance, in attempting such a task as a journey to the Arctic regions." These were the words of Lieut. Greely to a near relative just before he started on his momentous sail, uttered in response to the question whether he, thin and fragile, thought he could endure the privation and toil of an Arctic search. On this theory his whole plan has been carried out, and it would seem as though the results justify his belief. Pluck and grit have availed with him where strength and health failed with others.

Lieut. Greely is by no means a man of imposing appearance. Tall, reaching a height of full six feet, with narrow chest, thin, delicate hands, and feet almost small enough for a lady, complexion light even to paleness, although partially concealed by a heavy brown beard, thin gaunt cheeks, blue eyes shaded by glasses—his whole figure presents the picture of a life-long student rather than a hardy soldier and explorer. And yet, beneath all is the strong, powerful will which never bows down under opposition or despair, and the fixed determination of adherence to method and discipline. There is the mental endurance which holds sway over the physical. Few people in Newburyport, the native city of Lieut. Greely will remember him when they first see him. Always modest and retiring, he never forced his presence upon any one, but rather shrank from what would generally be regarded as pleasant notoriety. His uniform was seldom displayed at public festivals. But with his friends, who to him are always his friends through thick and thin, he is well known and well loved.

"Let me tell you an instance of his determination," said one. "You must know, first, that Lieutenant Greely and Lucian, his nephew, in spite of the disparity of years, were boon companions. When the lieutenant visited home he and Lucian were always romping together like boys, jumping over fences and playing tricks with one another. One of their feats was to have a wrestling match in the house, and then woe betide every article of furniture that came in their way, for each was determined to throw the other and each was of strong will. Adolphus always won until the last match. Then he had been at work in Washington for some time in doors, and Lucian had meanwhile grown to be a strong, sturdy youth. They cleared the kitchen and went at it, rough and tumble. Such a tearing around as there was; it was terrible; we really thought one of them would be killed by some accident. At last Lucian downed his uncle, and for the first time the lieutenant had to give up. But when he left the room we thought he was almost deathly sick, so fearfully had the struggle worked upon him, and Lucian, too, was nearly prostrated. They had wrestled entirely on their will power, and the consequent exhaustion was worse than the physical exhaustion."

"Another illustrative incident I will tell you," added Mr. John A. Greely, brother of the lieutenant. "When Adolphus was a boy at school the ball was knocked over the fence into another yard. He went after the ball and cleared the fence, and in so doing fell and broke his arm. Yet in spite of that he got the ball, and when his playmates could not batter out a board in the fence for him to return through the opening, he rushed forward, gave the board a heavy kick and forced an opening through. Then after having brought back the ball he went down town and had his arm fixed, returning that afternoon to school and continuing to attend regularly."

Lieut. Greely was always methodical in his manner of life. He held certain theories in regard to eating and sleeping, and according to those theories he abided, and furthermore tried to make every one else abide. Two meals a day he held were sufficient; and those meals were for him very light ones. His adherence to settled method was, without doubt, of the greatest possible advantage to him in his Arctic research. For years he has held the idea of making that expedition. When the Bennett expedition was prepared Lieut. Greely made ready to go, procuring a special outfit at the cost of $2,000, but finding that he would have to resign his commission and go as a private citizen he decided to wait. It is scarcely probable he will ever undertake another journey north.

Just before leaving in 1881 he said to a near friend, "I will give two years and a half of my life to the cause and then give it to someone else." But Lieut. Greely will not retire from active life, resting on his laurels. He is not that kind of a man. Always active and anxious to be doing something, he will return to active service. His sick leave will be spent with his relatives in Newburyport and possibly a portion of it at the Crawford House in the White Mountains, where Mr. Barron, a friend of the family and proprietor of the hotel, has invited him to visit.

Lieut. Greely's plan on this expedition to the North Pole was different from the old plans. His idea was to establish colonies at distances of 100 miles apart, straight up toward the pole. Each year ships were to come with supplies and with relays of men to take the places of the sick or disabled colonists, who were to be brought home in the same relieving vessel. In this way the advance northward could be made by degrees, and each exploring party would have close behind it a colony of refuge, provided they became hard pressed. This plan Congress recently decided to abandon, but probably if the government had not failed in its part of the first exploration plan and had brought back all Lieut. Greely's men in safety, the colony system would have been adopted.

While on the western coast the lieutenant met Miss Henrietta Nesmith, at her father's residence in San Diego, California, fell in love with her almost at first sight and in the summer of 1878 was joined in marriage. Two children have since been born to grace their home. Before their marriage Lieut. Greeley frankly told his bride of the great ambition of his life and asked from her the pledge that she would never object to his going in search of the North Pole. She gave it, and has nobly kept her promise. Not a word of opposition has she ever uttered, although all the rest of his relatives urged and urged against his scheme. She and his mother have also been hopeful of his return, never giving up even when all others despaired.

A Strange Epidemic.

MILLIONS OF PERCH AND OTHER FISH DYING IN LAKE MENDOTA.

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 6.—The mortality of perch and other fish in Lake Mendota continues, and scientific men from various parts of the country have been called to investigate the matter. Thus far, 200 tons of dead fish have been hauled away from the shores of the lake by the city authorities. The smell in hot weather is simply horrible. The worst mortality prevails when the lake is still or gently stirred by a south wind. On a rough estimate 3,000,000 fish have died in the lake, and their bodies have drifted to the shore. Perch are the only fish dying whose death cannot be accounted for. Whitefish are going to a certain extent, but they die every year on account of being driven from the cool water near the mouth of the springs which supply the lake where they congregate, into the warm water which prevails everywhere else.

A few pickerel also are seen dead, but not enough to cause the idea of an epidemic. It is the perch which gets the best of fishermen now by their death. The dead perch range in size from one-third pound to two pounds. They have strewed the shore for nearly four weeks. Cart loads are taken away and buried, but still the shore is covered with their carcasses. Every gale, every breeze that blows strews them over the waves. Theories are numerous regarding this disease. One attributes it to an insect that gets into their windpipe and chokes; another notices a black spot near the gills and attributes to its presence the cause of which death is the effect. The State commissioners are greatly mystified and perplexed over the matter. Experts from the Smithsonian and other institutes are investigating the strange epidemic.

The Bite of the Rattlesnake

STRANGE FACTS WHICH CANNOT BE ACCOUNTED FOR BY DOCTORS.

MOUNT MORRIS, N. Y., Aug. 6.—The statement which has been given wide publicity in the newspapers, that a daughter of the Hon. A. C. Ramage, of Bellaire, O., who was bitten on the right hand nine years ago this summer by a copperhead snake, has suffered intensely on each anniversary of the day on which she was bitten, the arm and hand becoming swollen, and the original symptoms of paralysis appearing, has aroused much interest in the medical profession as being something unprecedented in toxicological phenomena. The incident, however, has recalled the circumstances attending a similar case which occurred in this county.

Col. George Smith, who was Livingston county's first assemblyman, in 1822, married a girl who was bitten by a rattlesnake in 1803. Her life was saved, but regularly every year thereafter, on the day of the month on which the bite was inflicted, the symptoms of the poisoning violently returned. The part bitten, her ankle, became black and swollen, and the entire leg was affected by it. The paroxysm of pain that followed the original injection of the poison, re-appeared, and the victim suffered terribly. The symptoms gradually grew less violent during the day, and on the day following, entirely disappeared. These visitations became more violent every year, and on the thirty-second appearance the paroxysms were so violent that Mrs. Smith was unable to wear through them, and she died in the most intense agony.

Miss Ramage's return symptoms are characterized by a similar increase in violence, and it is feared that the visitation this year will prove fatal. She was bitten on the 19th of August, 1875.

A correspondent of the Portland Globe writes to that paper that S. P. Mayberry, and W. D. Dana, a learned antiquarian and historian of London, England, have been visiting Fort Popham and Parker's Island with a view to satisfy themselves as to the location of the Popham settlement of 1607. The Popham expedition had no historian with them, or if they did his work is lost. Wm. Strachey wrote out an account from their dictation some years after. He being unacquainted with the locality and his stay short, his account varies, or in other words is contradictory, not willful, but having wrong information of the locality. At Little Harbor on the east side of the mouth of the Kennebec river, has been discovered by the early settlers, foundations of buildings and of fortifications, a walled up spring; also they found there 150 years ago an apple tree then old, remains of which now can be seen; also on the site of these foundations were found [illegible] copper ornaments, clay pipes and also an iron axe with numerous other evidence which led both of these gentlemen to conclude that this was the probable site of Popham settlement.

To ornament the table a pretty dish may be arranged thus: Dip bunches of grapes into the beaten white of an egg, sift powdered sugar over them, lay them upon a sieve to dry, then lay them on a glass dish with a tall standard. Currants and cherries may be used instead of grapes.

The Collapse Begun

[illegible]

[illegible] campaign documents most effective against Cleveland and Hendricks are furnished by Cleveland's [illegible].

The way to clean Cleveland's personal character, according to some Cleveland organs, is to make faces at Cleveland's accusers. But that will not satisfy the demand for purity of private character in public [illegible], nor will it check [illegible] candidate who [illegible] no other defence.

The Pharisees are now strangely silent as to the necessity of a candidate being like [illegible] wife.

The latest reported convert to Cleveland is Hon F. S. Converse, of Malden, Mass. But Mr Converse didn't allow the report about him to cool before he buried it beneath a most emphatic denial. He proposes to continue a Republican. Next!

Will Cleveland withdraw from the race? He has taken to the woods to consider the question. Meanwhile the Democratic party are considering whether it is more dangerous to swap horses while crossing a stream than to continue astride a condemned nag.

Mr Blaine Against the Know Nothings

It is a marked tribute to the correctness and value of Mr Blaine's public record that in order to assail him at all it is necessary for his foes to travel back thirty years, long before he entered the public service, and even then to invoke falsehood in their behalf. Conspicuous in their efforts to misrepresent his attitude toward the Know Nothing party in 1854 have been the New York Herald and Boston Globe. But as usual with attacks upon him they succeed only in provoking testimony in his favor so emphatic that less mendacious assailants would forever keep silence [illegible] shame at their repeated lamentable [illegible].

The letter of the Hon John L. Stevens elsewhere printed, ought to set this matter at rest. Mr Stevens was intimately associated with Mr Blaine, and knows his history well. And his statement is fully corroborated by the records. Mr Blaine was not connected with the public press and had taken no active part in politics when some of the events with which the traducers try to connect him transpired. It was well known by all our then active [illegible] that he was outspoken in hostility to the spirit of Knownothingism, and no man among the many then living who were politically hostile to him then as now [illegible] will rise up to deny [illegible] of him. It is as clearly established as anything in history can be that Mr Blaine exerted his influence as far as possible to discourage Know Nothing [illegible] and the Know Nothing organization [illegible] frantic efforts of Cleveland organs [illegible] succeed in perverting his manly record on this as upon all other subjects.

Not merely is the inherent strength of Mr Blaine's public record more firmly established by these wild and fruitless assaults. They [illegible] than the [illegible] of a attacking party before an [illegible] defence. They expose the [illegible] necessity of blinding dust to prevent their [illegible] breaking their old ties and helping [illegible] swell the tide which is setting [illegible] against the British free trade policy [illegible] towards the American policy which Mr Blaine better represents than any other man living. The Democratic [illegible] know that nothing but the [illegible] presentation [illegible] the Irish American vote from Mr Blaine and preserve a British policy in American politics and the more they struggle against the tide the deeper will they [illegible] which [illegible] the [illegible] truly American Nation.

Powerful Speakers

The Republicans of this county will [illegible] this week the opportunity to hear three of the [illegible] orators of the country, Hon. Emory A. Storrs of Chicago, Gen. William Gibson and Gen. Charles H. Grosvenor of Ohio.

General Gibson [illegible] will speak at [illegible] next, and at Orono and Oldtown on the evenings of [illegible] and Saturday. Everybody who [illegible] should go to hear him.

Mr Storrs is one of the most able platform speakers of the country and Gen. Grosvenor is [illegible] orator who was gallant as soldier. Their meeting at [illegible] next Saturday evening will [illegible] the campaign.

Was Mr Blaine a Know Nothing? Testimony of Mr Stevens

[illegible]

My opinion has been asked relative to the declarations of the Boston [illegible] of August 8th respecting the political views of Mr Blaine early thirty years ago, when one of the editors of the Kennebec Journal. Associated [illegible] at that time, and [illegible] thoroughly informed as to his political principles at all [illegible] I declare he had no sympathy with the distinctive views of the Know Nothing organization, never was [illegible] it, but on the contrary was [illegible] to its aims and purposes. [illegible] the statements of the Boston [illegible] is historically correct. As you [illegible] to publish in full what your Boston [illegible] truthful declarations.

JOHN L. STEVENS.

Augusta, August 8, 1884

Mr [illegible] began his canvass [illegible] of Maine in Boston on Friday evening. Whether he thought that the way to the Maine State House is through [illegible] or whether he wanted to get his hand in where an adulterer [illegible] Democracy has more chance than in Maine is [illegible] to call for the tumble in [illegible] record.

The sleek and tender footed gentlemen to whom Blaine and Logan appeared too utterly utter as politicians are finding that their path in the other course are not [illegible] with roses [illegible]. Before Cleveland's nomination and the full revelation of the Democratic candidate's personal character was to distinguish the other and scrupulous campaign. But as the beautiful butterfly finds his graceful flights [illegible] by a cruel August frost a mysterious influence has overtaken our lofty brothers and they whisper gently that personal [illegible] is not the sort of character with which they intended to emblazon their banner upon the outer wall. Then too, the whole Republican machine is likely to have a rest since [illegible] Barnum, coffee-pot Wallace, ringmaster Gorman, Boss McLaughlin and the notorious Hubert O Thompson and Sheriff Davidson have their unclean hands on the motive power of the Cleveland boom and will distribute the bread which the political cherubim long to cast upon the purified waters. But we may never know the real sufferings of these our too lovely brothers just on the ragged edge of politics, unless in the despair which has overtaken other Olly Gammons by their own hand they shall some day accomplish their own untimely taking off.

That staunch New York Democrat, Roger A Pryor, remarks upon Butler's bolt that he is "afraid poor Mr Cleveland is doomed." John Kelly coolly advises his friends to wait until Butler's letter is published. "By that time," he adds, "the mist will have cleared and it will be safer to make predictions." Mr P C Callicott, the editor of the Democratic Albany Times says right out loud that "If Butler runs, Cleveland's defeat is inevitable." Truly, there does not appear to be a promising chance for hope to spring eternal in the Democratic breast this season.

At the great Maranocook gathering on Tuesday, there will be six speaker's stands, and probably it will be so arranged that the leading speakers will appear for a few minutes at each one. It will be the grandest political demonstration ever known in Maine.

Campaign Clippings

The New York Times is always abusing somebody. In 1872 Carl Shurz was the man. February 24th of that year it said of him:

"They (the people) begin to understand that Shurz, who tried for years to get his relatives and friends into office, and only turned patriot when he failed, is too costly a luxury for this busy age. The mordinate conceit of Schurz may prevent him from seeing this, but he will have to open his eyes to the unwelcome truth one of these fine mornings. Every dog has his day and this one's is nearly gone."

The Irish American Blaine and Logan Club in Fall River, Mass., has been permanently organized with the following officers: President, Dennis V Sullivan; Vice Presidents, Michael Burley, James Driscoll, Patrick Wall, John Moran, Francis Cox, Anthony Morely, John Doherty; Secretary, T. F. Doherty; Financial Secretary, P. F. Fahey; Treasurer, J. P. O'Keefe. The Club has now 113 members, and 29 names are reported to have been secured for a similar Club in Ward 9.

Boston Post: "Butler will work hand in glove with Blaine. He will get all the Democratic votes he can in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts. He will be glad to have any Democrat vote directly for Blaine but if he will not do that he will be glad to have him vote for Butler. He expects to make dupes of a large number of honest workingmen in every State in the Union, the riff raff he will turn over to Blaine. Now he will succeed if he can get enough dupes."

Mr John Boyle O'Reilly of the Boston Pilot thinks that Gen Butler's candidacy is a calamity for the Democratic party. Mr O'Reilly is quoted as further saying: "And no matter what may be said about the [illegible] of raking over Gov Cleveland's private life, the result of the raking is [illegible] matter and will affect many conscientious voters."

A SUCCESSFUL CONGRESSMAN

Aroostook Republican: "It has been amply demonstrated that Capt. Boutelle makes one of the best Congressmen ever sent from this district. He has worked hard, paid strict attention to business and looked closely after the interests of his constituents. He is a man of marked ability, of great integrity and of large and growing influence, and is well known not only in his own State but all through New England. Such a man deserves to be re-elected by a good rousing majority, as he undoubtedly will be. His principal opponent is [illegible] unknown Democratic lawyer, with nothing in particular to recommend him."

THE NEW YORK HERALD AND THE CATHOLICS

Catholic Herald: "It is more than unusual, it is unique, as a piece of high-toned cheek, to hear the N. Y. Herald address itself to all good Catholics in its bitter attacks against Blaine. Why such unusual sweetness? All the Know Nothings that ever lived rolled into one, could not begin to make a Know Nothing equal to the N. Y. Herald. The man who reads the county of such a newspaper must have much to recommend him to decent people. The friendship of the N. Y. Herald is a thousand times more against a man or cause than its enmity."

WHY THE OPPOSITION TO CLEVELAND

The demoralizing effect of the nomination of Cleveland on the Lawrence, Mass., Democracy may be realized from the nature of the meeting of the City Committee last Thursday evening. It was well understood, says the [illegible], that Chairman Lowe was hostile to the Presidential nomination of the party, and that other prominent members of the committee had already pronounced against Cleveland, but the extent of the committee's demoralization was hardly anticipated by any one. Notices had been sent to every one of the forty-two members, but only fourteen put in an appearance, including Chairman Lowe. The latter called the meeting to order and tendered his resignation, addressing the members substantially as follows:

"You have seen by the press of the city that I am not in sympathy with the Democratic nomination for President. In all other matters appertaining to politics I yield to none in allegiance to the Democratic party. Our newly fledged Democratic [illegible] has said that I am a sorehead, and I ask this committee to distinctly understand that such is not the fact. I retire from this committee solely because my business will not permit me to participate in politics and because the nomination of Mr Cleveland is in my judgment detrimental to the industrial interests of this country."

WEST VIRGINIA

The Democrats are becoming considerably alarmed about carrying West Virginia. The Secretary of the Congressional Committee has made frequent trips to that State and the energies of that committee seem to be devoted to an effort to prevent the Republicans from gaining the great advantage certain to result from carrying a Democratic October State. A number of appeals from West Virginia have been made to the Democratic National Committee for aid. The relation of ex-Senator Davis of that State to the canvass is not satisfactory to the Democrats. The fact that his son-in-law, Stephen B. Elkins, is now spending some days there has renewed their suspicions of Davis's earnestness in Democratic success. He is to be called upon for a subscription to test his party loyalty.

NEW YORK SOLID FOR BLAINE

Col John H. Joyce says: "I have just returned from New York, where I found the sentiment among Irishmen tremendously in favor of Blaine. Just think of it, there are seven Irish papers there which are ordinarily for the Democratic ticket. This year they are all supporting Blaine in their most vigorous fashion. If the Irish voters of New York city do what they say they will and I haven't any doubt but they will fulfil their promises, the Republican ticket will gain ten votes where it loses two to the Independents. New York State is safe in the Republican column no matter what the Independents say to the contrary."

CLEVELAND ASKED TO CLEAR HIMSELF

N. Y. Sun (Dem.): The private life of a candidate for president is a proper subject of examination. No matter if he displays honesty in financial affairs, no matter, indeed, if he exhibits every political virtue and all possible administrative talents, yet we say that if his mode of life is beastly, if he is given to coarse intrigues and purchased amours, if he is, in short, not a man, but an animal, then we do not want him for President of the United States. We do not believe the American people will knowingly elect to the Presidency a coarse debauchee who would bring his harlots with him to Washington and hire lodgings for them conveniently to the White House.

The private life of a candidate for the Presidency is a matter of public concern; and we trust that Mr Cleveland will yet prove able to clear himself of every imputation of the sort.

BUTLER'S MEAT AXE

Benj. Butler sitting around with a meat-axe in his hand ready to dissect Cleveland's letter of acceptance is a spectacle scarcely less interesting than that of the boy who sat with a club watching a hole in the river bank. "What are you going to catch from that hole, my boy?" "I dunno whether it'll be a snake, swaller or tortle, but it's all the same ter me. If it's a tortle he'll wish he'd been a swaller, and if it's swaller he'll wish he'd been a snake. I think it's a snake, and I'm dead set agin snakes."—Philadelphia Press.

Not Much of a Ratification.

The Boston Democrats tried to ratify Cleveland's nomination on Friday evening. They hired two or three halls, when one big one would have sufficed; and after all the assembly was composed in about equal parts of Cleveland and Butler men, with a sprinkling of Blaine men. Brief extracts from the reports will show the spirit which prevailed:

"Hon. P. A. Collins was chairman of the Faneuil meeting, and on taking his place on the platform made a brief speech, which he had hardly begun when some one in the audience called for three cheers for Butler, which were given with tremendous enthusiasm. Mr. Collins' speech was constantly interrupted by a Butler element, and "put him out" was frequently cried. "Don't put him out," said Mr. Collins; "let him stay in and be converted. If he can't be converted he must be bought or intimidated." A voice shouted "Hit him with a brick." Considerable confusion prevailed during Mr Collins' address, the applause and interruptions being about even."

At the Tremont Temple meeting after several speeches,

"Hon. J. B. Redman, the Democratic candidate for Governor of Maine, was introduced. He said he would consider it beneath him to personally attack Mr Blaine. That candidate's record was well known. At this point the confusion caused by so many persons leaving the hall was so great that the speaker was obliged to bring his address to an abrupt conclusion, which he did after stating that the prominent issue in the present political canvass was reform."

Compared with the Blaine and Logan ratification, this affair was a failure.

A Convention of Irish Protectionists

A call has been issued for a convention of Irishmen who are opposed to British free trade, and in favor of protecting American industries, to meet at Cincinnati Sept 30. This is the language of the call:

"Our Convention will be a grand demonstration against the heresies of Free Trade with England, whether they are presented under the form of a tariff for revenue only, or a 20 per cent. horizontal reduction of the tariff. This last lash which was supported in Congress by three-quarters of the Democratic members, and was defeated only by the stern and combined opposition of the Republican members, aided by a few Democrats—is the genuine platform on which Grover Cleveland, Democratic nominee for President, stands and with which he is in full sympathy. It is unnecessary to inform Irish Citizens who are all Protectionists, that Morrison's bill meant a 20 per cent. reduction of the wages of American workingmen and that it behooves them to rise in their might and resist to the utmost extremity, the party and the men who for their own sinister designs, are plotting the destruction of our manufacturing interests and the enriching of the cotton and iron lords of England at our expense. All other questions sink into insignificance in the presence of this one great overshadowing issue. We implore you, as you value the sacred interests of your wives and children, to stamp out the nefarious schemes of those who are conspiring against the prosperity of our Commonwealth. We suggest that every effort be made to organize Blaine and Logan and Free Trade Clubs in every town, city and precinct in the United States."

The call is signed by many Irishmen in all parts of the country. Mr John J. Geghan, of Cincinnati, will answer all inquiries relative to the convention.

BOSTON, Aug 10 In an interview yesterday, Gen Butler said of the Democratic leaders "I said they complained that I had deserted the Democratic party There is no way of satisfying them The last time they complained, it was that I had captured the Democratic organization Be it so, then I have only let my captives loose

I owe a great debt of gratitude to the people of Massachusetts, but none to any Democratic organization, State or National In no campaign did I ever receive aid from the Democratic National organization, nor did any National Democrat from outside the State ever come here or say a word in my favor, or in favor of the Democratic party while I was the unanimous nominee Whenever I have any use for the organization of the Massachusetts Democracy I will get it"

Two More Buffalo Clergymen on the Cleveland Scandal

Two more Buffalo clergymen are to be added to the number of those who are acquainted with the facts in the case of Mr Cleveland and do not hesitate to avow the truth of the charges against him One of them is the Rev W H Crubbe pastor of the United Presbyterian Church at Buffalo, who sums up the case succinctly when he says of the charges "The trouble is they cannot be refuted" The other is the Rev Robert Dick, of No 119 West Upper street, Buffalo Mr Dick while on a visit to Boston, was asked by the business manager of the Globe whether the charges were true In reply he sent the Globe a letter after his return to Buffalo, which, as it has not appeared in the columns of that estimable sheet we may assume to have miscarried Mr Dick apparently apprehended some such mischance, for he kept a copy of the letter and sent it to the Buffalo Telegraph from which paper we copy it

To Business Manager and Editor Globe, Boston Mass

Gentlemen—When last week in the business office of the Globe, you asked me as a citizen of Buffalo if the damaging rumors against Cleveland were true you startled me, as I was not then aware that the rumors had been made public In answer to your question, truth compelled me to say that I could not gainsay the rumors Yet as I had not then had evidence enough to enable me to go farther I declined to do so; but stated it as my belief that if elected he would make a good President. In like belief, though a Republican, I had voted to make him Mayor of Buffalo and Governor of the State This week I have heard more than enough to make it due to you that I withdraw that statement of belief, and to say now that having sought denials of the filthiness then rumored, I have received no denials that do not leave it more fitting that he withdraw himself from being a candidate from the Presidency, and even from the sight of men, than that we aid to give effect to his Chicago nomination It is trying to be compelled thus to speak, but when men are boldly stating that however true the rumored abominations are, their publication insures the election of their perpetrator—thus making a polluted reputation the guarantee of success in a Presidential election—the time for feeble utterances has passed; the strongest forms of speech must be used in protest, or we are deservedly near the doom of Sodom

Buffalo, July 27 ROBERT DICK

As a further illustration of the impressions which prevails in Buffalo, where the people are most familiar with the facts, we quote the following from the Buffalo Christian Advocate of last week

"Is there to be no vindication of Grover Cleveland from the grave charges to which we referred last week? Is there no one of his law partners or personal friends to speak a word toward relieving his moral character of the odium which now attaches to it? Is vindication impossible? We hope not and yet continued silence under such an arraignment will certainly be construed as a concession of guilt. Let some one speak on his behalf, therefore or let it be understood that he is not a fit person to be a candidate for the Presidency of the Nation, An answer to the charges against him is of more consequence just now than an answer to the committee notifying him of his nomination"

That these pathetic and earnest demands for a vindication are not likely to be met may be inferred from the following in the Buffalo Telegraph of Aug. 5:

"The editor of the Telegraph had that case investigated under his personal direction by trustworthy men directly responsible to him. He collated the evidence and wrote out the review with his own hand. He weighed his statements well, and he is prepared to maintain that the story as he told it in the Telegraph of July 21 is true. The accredited organ of Gov. Cleveland in this city have let a fortnight pass without hinting that it was false. They have not ventured to give even the most qualified denial. It is plain that—if Grover Cleveland had a clean bill of moral health he present, that story would have been denounced promptly and publicly here at his home."

An Irish Newspaper Describes Some of Cleveland's Supporters.

The Catholic Herald thus arraigns some of Cleveland's foremost friends

The N Y Herald, that had the Confederate flag concealed under its counter for weeks, in the hope that it might be able to hoist it over its own building when the news of Lee's victory reached it

Henry Ward Beecher who proclaimed that bread and water was a good enough diet for American workingmen

The London Telegraph, the bitter enemy of Ireland and America.

The New York Times the Republican deserter

The London Times, that declared the priesthood of Ireland was simply "surpliced ruffians," that gloated over the miseries of Irish emigration arising from the famine, and boasted that as the Irish had gone, and gone with a vengeance the sight of a Celt on the banks of the Shannon would soon be as scarce as the sight of a red man on Manhattan Island

The Boston Herald, the enemy of the labor interests in New England, the teacher and preacher of free trade doctrines in behalf of English interests, and English capitalists

The Tory London Standard, that dwells with particular satisfaction on Irish coercion bills, the friend of the Orange aristocracy and the bitter enemy of Parnell

The London Daily News, the great free trade advocate.

George William Curtis, editor of Harper's Weekly, the mere mention of whose name is sufficient to make him execrated by every Irish American citizen in the land

The Harpers of Franklin Square, New York, whose animosity to the Irish all over the world has been unceasing and unrelenting Tories under the government in colonial days and Tories ever since

Tom Nast, the blasphemer, whose pencil has ever been ready at the command of the Harpers to caricature Pope, Priest or Cardinal This Bohemian ghoul never knew a pleasure to equal the feelings of delight that possess him when at work on his vile portraitures of the Catholic religion

These are the men who support Cleveland, and into whose company we are expected to go and cast our votes for their choice!

Democrats who Exposed Cleveland

It was William Purcell, editor of the Rochester Union one of the ablest and most influential papers in New York, who first formulated the charge that Governor Cleveland is a "moral leper" and who has since resigned his place upon the Democratic electoral ticket because he cannot support such a man It was the Boston Globe, the organ of the New England Democracy that first aired the Cleveland scandal in this section and warned its party not to nominate him because he had "too many children for a bachelor, and a character that could not be defended" It was an independent, non-partisan paper, printed at Cleveland's home, that first published the sickening details of the Reform candidate's debaucheries and it was the Cincinnati Enquirer, the leading Democratic paper in Ohio whose editor is chairman of the Democratic State Committee that first found space in which to repeat "The Terrible Tale" and give it circulation in the West

It was Rev Dr Ball and three other eminent clergymen of Buffalo who vouched for the substantial accuracy of the terrible expose of Cleveland's character and it was the Boston Herald and Globe, both of them his thick and thin supporters, which after obtaining his permission to "tell the truth," said

"Gov Cleveland has not lived a chaste life, but his connection with impure women has not been flaunted in the face of the public and except for his present prominent position, his life in this respect would probably have been unknown by the general public"

And it is such sticklers for purity, and such shouters for reform as the New York Post and Springfield Republican, which meet the charges against him with the astounding proposition that the personal character of candidates must not be considered in a political campaign All these may be jackals, but, with the possible exception of the Buffalo clergymen, they are not Republican jackals —Manchester Mirror

A Western Yankee in Politics

Mr H C Bickford a son of the veteran Thomas Bickford of this city, after an absence of many years, has returned to enjoy a short vacation among his friends He lives in Ashland, near Lincoln Nebraska, and is a good type of live Yankee implanted in Western soil In conversation with the WHIG, Mr Bickford says that he wants to set at rest one of the drawbacks manufactured by eastern croakers to affect politics He finds that in order to help the cry of hard times and Cleveland's boom, many people here try to make it out that business, and especially the agricultural interest in the West, is stagnant and unprofitable Nothing, he asserts could be further from the truth The crops in Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa, and in fact throughout the Northwest, never were better, and the farmers never were more cheerful and happy, and, as a consequence never more solidly Republican than now.

Mr. Bickford says that the reports touching Cleveland's moral character had reached Nebraska before he left, and were having a great effect, many country Democrats hesitating to support a ticket about which there could be a suspicion in that regard. Not satisfied to take other people's conclusions on so important a subject, Mr Bickford stopped off at Buffalo and spent some time investigating the subject of Cleveland's life and habits. Without giving the details of his report, it is sufficient to say that the charges are not only true, but reputable people of Buffalo, of all professions and walks of life, assert that the worst yet remains to be told.

In reply to questions as to the political outlook wherever he stopped on his way east, Mr. Bickford says that everything is encouraging for Blaine and Logan, and the Cleveland men are down at the mouth generally. He gives one remarkable example of accession to Blaine and Logan While at Olean, N Y, a Blaine club was formed, and twenty five Irishmen who never had voted with the Republicans walked up and signed the roll and declared that they were enlisted for the campaign Reports from all parts of that State he says were to the effect that this change of the Irish vote was general and would amount to many thousands who have the cash to invest. The recent low prices have been due not only to the general dullness in manufacturing interests, but also to the special effect of that tight money market upon the wool trade. We predict a gradual improvement in prices and a gradual awakening on the part of the buyers to the unusual bargains and unsurpassed assortment now offering in American wools.—Cultivator.

The apple crop generally promises to be fair. With exceptional favored spots the New England States have a light crop. In the valleys and low points in New York, Ohio and Michigan, as the Hudson River valley from Albany to New York, Genesee valley, etc., the heavy frosts of last May very seriously damaged all fruit prospects, totally destroying them in places. Western New York, with exceptional points, promise a two-thirds full crop. The extreme western counties of Chautauqua, Cattaraugus and Allegheny promise light, this being their off year in bearing. The great apple belt around the lakes, from New York to Michigan, inclusive, promises a two-thirds full crop. There is a fair crop in northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin but only about a quarter of a crop in south Illinois, while eastern Kansas, Missouri and northwest Arkansas have from a half to three-fourths of a crop. Kentucky and Tennessee and North Carolina have about an average half crop. Oregon and California have full crops of apples. Europe has a much smaller crop of apples this year than last, being only about half a crop in Great Britain and France but an average crop in Germany. Canada promises an average crop of apples.

Mr. H. H. C. Burleigh the eminent breeder, reached his home in Vassalboro, on Monday last, having landed in New York on Sunday afternoon. On hearing the sad news of the death of his son, which was cabled to him immediately, he left England at once, sailing in the Alaska, one of the fastest of the English steamers, from Queenstown on Sunday, July 20. Although called home on so sad a mission, it was fortunate for the great company [illegible]. Each he represents that his purchases of cattle had all been made, and were shipped July 24th and he himself would have left England in a week longer, even had he not been summoned home. Prices of Herefords rule very high in England this year being about 30 per cent more than last season, but Mr. Burleigh has purchased one hundred and twenty choice Herefords and fifteen Sussex. These will land in Quebec about Wednesday of next week, and Mr. Burleigh will leave to meet them on Monday next [illegible] arrangements for their reception. Hosts of friends will be glad of Mr. Burleigh's safe return home, and extend to him profound sympathy in the sad death of the promising son who had just fitted himself for business, was to have become his father's secretary and confidential clerk, and who was so suddenly taken from earth.—Home Far.

Agricultural Experiment Stations.

About the beginning of this century an interest in all branches of agricultural science began to engage the attention and to allow of anything that to investigators. The increasing population and the decreased fertility of exhausted soils naturally led to thoughtful minds the necessity of inquiry and research for remedies, and in succession came Priestly, Lavoisier, Liebig, Boussingault, Lawes and Gilbert, and numerous others studied agricultural questions in a scientific manner. In 1851 the first Agricultural Experiment Station was founded in Saxony by a society of farmers. Its value became so apparent, that once that it was recognized by the Government, and others soon followed, until now there are one hundred and thirty stations in Europe, eighty in Germany alone. But with this enthusiasm in Europe, progressive Americans were long in understanding why chiefly to an essential difference in our agricultural system. Our lands were broad and fertile. Though some on the eastern seaboard were showing loss of power, it was easy to draw on virgin soil, than to redeem the old, and only when the exhausted acres reached an important proportion of the whole, did we begin to listen to the claims of agricultural science.

In 1875 the first Agricultural Experiment Station proper in the United States was established at the Wesleyan University, Middletown, Connecticut, [illegible] by the [illegible] appropriated by the [illegible] established by [illegible] and the [illegible] for [illegible] laboratories, etc. Its success and usefulness were so manifest that larger annual appropriations were provided, and the Station, receiving the [illegible] of the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale College, has now buildings and lands of its own in the suburbs of New Haven. In 1877 North Carolina provided a station at [illegible] Raleigh. In 1880 the New Jersey State Station was started in connection with Rutgers College at New Brunswick, near which is the State Experimental Farm. In 1881 the New York Legislature provided for an annual appropriation of twenty thousand dollars for an Agricultural Experiment Station which began work in [illegible] 1882.

By the best [illegible] in this country in 1882 Ohio founded a Station at the State University at Columbus. The same year Massachusetts incorporated the Station that began work in July, 1883. These comprise the public Agricultural Experiment Stations of our country. In addition most of the Agricultural Colleges carry on some special line of investigation. The only station in the United States supported privately and yet conducted on scientific principles, is that at Houghton Farm, Orange County, N. Y., established in 1876. This briefly is the history and present status of organized research in agriculture in the United States.—H. E. Stone in Amer. Agriculturist.

[illegible] your hens as well as you do yourself. If you want eggs protect your fowls and feed them. It is the feed that makes the eggs. No feed no eggs. Don't forget that a hen is an egg machine. She takes food matter and converts it into albumen, oil and shell. The assimilation of the greatest amount of the proper food of course gives the greatest amount of egg production. Contraction of food means diminution of egg supply. Then feed well, keep your fowls safe from bad conditions of weather, interruptions and accident. Put your mind and heart into the business and you will make money.

The term "foundered" is used very indefinitely and conveys ideas that are apt to be very confused. The disease to which the word should be restricted consists of inflammation of the sensitive portions of the feet—which inflammation may be either recent or long standing. In the early stage of the affection every effect possible must be made to subdue the inflammation and to restore the parts to their healthy condition. For this purpose large poultices are to be applied to the feet and the animal encouraged to lie down. In order to prevent congestion it is advisable in this early stage to walk the horse without shoes on soft ploughed ground. Where excessive tenderness and inflammation have set in exercise is out of the question. A mild laxative (not purging) should be administered, one-half an ounce of aloes is most appropriate.

If any one has a pear tree that bears spotted or cracked fruit, says Cropple, in the New York Tribune, let him sprinkle wood ashes freely over the soil beneath the tree, as far in diameter as the branches extend, not a light sprinkle, either, but a liberal dressing. Then wash the bark thoroughly with strong soap suds (old fashioned soft soap preferred,) with the addition of fine water, and a fifth flour of sulphur. I had a white Doyenne pear tree treated in this way, that previously bore only imperfect fruit, but which after treatment gave some delicious highly colored specimens. It may not cure in every case, but it will do no harm.

The fever of speculation in Colorado has turned its tide towards irrigation. One company takes water thirty-five miles by successful engineering in a canal thirty-six feet wide on the bottom and seven feet deep for the first thirty miles, and then it gradually narrows and shallows. Its whole length will be eighty miles. It will water 300 square miles of territory, and will cost $1,000,000. It makes agriculture possible [illegible] and the profit of the company consists in the sale of lands and water privileges to farmers.

ROUGH ON DYSPEPSIA.

BANGOR, Nov. 19th, 1883.

I have suffered for a long time from indigestion. My food distressed me for hours after eating. I commenced taking DR. MANLY HARDY'S GENUINE JAUNDICE BITTERS, and from the first dose I found relief. I am now comparatively free from it, but when I do have a recurrence of the trouble, one swallow of this medicine will carry down the distress in a moment.
